We, Robert I, by the Grace of God, King of Talossa and of all its realms and regions, King of Cezembre, Viscount of Vuode, Sovereign Lord and Protector of Pengopats and the New Falklands, Head of the Church, Defender of the Faith, Leader of the Armed Forces, Viceroy of Hoxha and Vicar of Ataturk, Founder of the Great Nation of Talossa, do hereby decree:

Citizen #1:

Mic'háglh Pop

Art. 1 The crown of the Kingdom of Talossa is and remains bestowed upon His Royal Majesty Robert I, King of Talossa, to be possessed hereditarily by him and his legitimate descendants in accordance with the following provisions.

Art. 2 The crown shall pass by succession to his sons and other male descendants on the male side, by right of primogeniture, provided that in the case of the previous death of one entitled to the succession, the latter's sons or other male descendants on the male side shall take his place in the same manner, and the crown shall never pass to a younger line or a younger branch as long as such a descendant is found in the older line or older branch.

Art. 3 In default of the successors indicated in the previous article, the crown shall pass to the living daughters of the last deceased King by right of primogeniture.

Art. 4 In default of the daughters referred to in the previous article, the crown shall pass to the daughters of the descending male lines of the last deceased King, and, failing also these and their descendants, the crown shall pass to the descending female lines.

In these cases the older line shall always have precedence over the younger, the male branch over the female, and the older over the younger, and in each branch men shall have precedence over women and older ones over younger ones.

Art. 5 In default of a successor entitled to the Crown by virtue of the three preceding articles, the Crown shall pass to the line of the prince or princess belonging by birth to the House and Dynasty of Madison, who stands nearest to the last deceased King in the line of descent from Hêrí L. Donatüs. In case of an equal degree of relationship, the first born shall have the precedence.

If such a blood relative of the King shall have died before the King, his descendants shall take his place, the male line taking precedence over the female, and the older over the younger, and in every line the male branch over the female and the older over the younger, and in every branch men over women and older ones over younger ones.

Art. 6 With respect to the succession, abdication of the Crown shall have the same consequence as death. This shall apply from the ratification of the House Law by the Cosa and all past abdications prior to said ratification are ignored.

Art. 7 A child with which a woman is pregnant at the time of the King's death shall be considered as being born as far as the right to the crown is concerned. If it is born dead it shall be considered as having never existed.

Art. 8 All children born of a marriage concluded by the King or Queen without the consent of the Cosa, or by a prince or princess of the reigning dynasty without the consent granted by a law, shall be excluded from the succession, both as regards themselves and their descendants.

By contracting such a marriage a king or queen shall abdicate the Throne and a prince or princess shall forfeit his right thereto.

When the Crown has passed to another dynasty either by succession or in accordance with Arts. 11, 12 or 13, the present provisions shall apply only to marriages concluded after the time when the Crown so passed.

Art. 9 A child adopted legally by a Royal personage, with the approval of a majority in the Cosa, shall take his place in the line of succession as if born naturally to that personage.

Art. 10 Whenever special circumstances render advisable any change in or provision regarding the order of succession, the King is authorised to make a recommendation to that effect. The Cosa, convened for this purpose in a Living Cosa, shall deliberate and resolve thereon by Constitutional Amendment.

Art. 11 When no competent heir exists according to the Constitution, one shall be appointed by a law, the draft of which shall be presented by the King. The Cosa shall deliberate this draft in a Living Cosa and ratify it by a two-thirds majority.

Art. 12 When no competent successor exists according to the Constitution, upon the death of the King, the appointment shall be made directly by the Cosa, which shall be convened in Living Cosa within a month after the King's death. Their decision upon a new King shall not be valid until sustained by a two-thirds "yes" vote in a public referendum.

Art. 13 All provisions regarding the succession shall become applicable to the descendants of the first King to whom the Crown passes by virtue of the preceding articles, in such a manner that the new dynasty shall derive its origin from him, as far as succession is concerned, in the same manner and with the same effects as the House and Dynasty of Madison, according to Art. 1, derives its succession from Robert I, King of Talossa.

To this House Law We, Robert I, by the Grace of God, King of Talossa and of all its realms and regions, King of Cezembre, Viscount of Vuode, etc. etc., do hereunto set Our Royal Hand and Seal this Eleventh Day of February in the Year of Our Lord the Nineteen Hundred and Eighty-Ninth, and in the year of the Independence of Talossa, the Tenth.

Robert I, King of Talossa

I guess this is what we are looking at:

Art. 12 When no competent successor exists according to the Constituziun, upon the death of the King, the appointment shall be made directly by the Cosa, which shall be convened in Living Cosa within a month after the King's death. Their decision upon a new King shall not be valid until sustained by a two-thirds "yes" vote in a public referendum.

Does this actually, then, HAVE to be a Living Cosa? This law was written under the Constituziun, we have the Organic Law now.

If we do have to have a Living Cosa, do we have enough Old Growthers to assemble? At prior Living Cosas, we could assign proxies or send our votes in the usual way.

Yes, because it is just a normal law, not part of the Organic Law.

In fact, I have been looking for an amendment that is supposed to exist, but haven't yet found it.

The "Living Cosa" in today's cybercit age should consist of a meeting by email or somesuch thing.

It may be true that this law was pre-cybercit howere the definition of "Living Cosa" defined in the 1997 OrgLaw would require it. Howerver, I think that a PD or act would allow to change this or at the very least postpone the "Living Cosa".

Every time we've had a Living Cosa, at least sinbce I became a citizen in 1998, it had to be authorized by law, which meant, of course, action in a previous Clark.

All of this takes time, of course, which is why we need to appoint a Regent as soon as possible. Or, if the PM would like to get involved, some of this might be amended by PD. If that were to happen, though, it would behoove the PM to make sure he has support for the wording of the PD,. to avoid further unpleasantness or a battle in the next Clark.

The bus strike in Montreal has cramped your style and explains to my utter satisfaction your absence of late.

The Ben-Roadkill list now includes you.

My advice to you, Max, is this. Let things go. Stop calling people like Valadéir and M-P "Republicans" because that is some thing they are not. For the record, the only die-hard Republicans in Talossa that I know of are Metáiriâ, Pope, and I. The rest of Talossa is moderate-leaning, if anything, I believe, though many are "left-wing" people somewhat more akin to yourself.

Maxime, you are your own man. You are your own PM, and I can tell you that if you can find a way to bring things back together again, you will go down as one of the greatest PMs Talossa has ever had.

While I do not speak for anyone other than myself, I believe you have it in you to do just that. You have always wanted to make your own mark in Talossa in a political sense. Now's your chance.

Seneschál Carbonèl,

In the coming days, a lot of urgent government business will need to be transacted. The citizenship renunciation of our erstwhile King, if it indeed takes effect, has left us all in the lurch. We have several significant legal steps that need to be taken, and soon.

For starters, we need to have a Head of State. Certain actions can only be undertaken by the Head of State. This necessitates appointment of a Regent to handle such duties until we have a new King or Queen.

We are examining the laws of succession to determine procedures for selecting a new king. The law may need amending in several places to allow us to operate in this new, post-Madisonian environment. This would be an ideal time to use the Prime Dictate power, which is ultimately meant for emergencies. A timely and popular PD can amend the 1989 House Law to allow the Cosa to select a new sovereign in a manner more in keeping with the distributed nature of Talossa today.

There will be other times when activity will be required from the executive arm of the government. It is difficult to lead an effort like this from the Cosa - this must be something where the PM is involved.

On behalf of the Talossan people, I ask you to be involved in this process, so that we are able to move past this crisis. I also ask that you do so in close consultation with the Opposition, so that we can avoid further discord. With the departure of Rôibeard Donatüs, it is clear that the Black Hand will never again enjoy the electoral power that it has at the moment - as you will no longer have access to the large number of inactive citizens who voted for "Ben's Party". Please recognize that and work with with the other parties who represent the active citizens of Talossa, so that this process will have a level of legitimacy that your Government acting on its own would not have, so that we can move beyond this and into the future.

When I was ZPT Cosa member, I always had a little difficulty with the monthly VOC thing. Being in the Opposition, I of course wanted another government. But it was the General Election, and not the VOC, that really asked who I wanted to lead Talossa. In my non-parliamentary opinion, the VOC asks: "Do I have confidence in the present government to lead and govern Talossa?" Oftentimes, I voted "yes", even when I was in the Opposition because, well, I did have that confidence.

Citizen #10:
Grigôriu Möbléir

Right now, however, as a non-party member and a non-MC, I have to answer a clear and definite "NO" to the question "do I have confidence in the the present government to lead and govern Talossa."

Please understand Max: this is nothing personal. I probably share many of your political views. I quit corporate America and became a domestic Peace Corps volunteer. I'm an organic gardener. I believe we have a public moral obligation to help our fellow man. I've read and agree (mostly) with John Rawls's "A Theory of Justice", a modern revival of social contract political theory and a, if not the, key philosophical justification of the postwar welfare-state. Heck, I took a "Green Party" ballot in the last open-primary election we had here in Alaska.

But I'm sorry: for Talossa's sake it'd be best, no, you need to resign as Seneschál for the time being.

Help form a 100% National Unity Government. Help make someone uncontroversial, like Jeff or UC or Dixhét, as a "caretaker" PM of a 100% National Unity Government. Talossan history will look kindly on you for this. You can always contest the next election as the standard-bearer for the Black Hand.

LONG LIVE TALOSSA!

Grigôriu Möbléir

PS can someone translate this into French so there's no misunderstanding? merci

[Dixhêt Conâ] That's what I'm here for. I suppose I could have been more hard-nosed when I Group: DELETED offered to coalition with MN and demanded to be made PM. I honestly thought that (126 posts total) would have been more controversial than Max's appointment, and apparently the (last post: N/A) MN as a whole felt the same. It's a pity the rest of the Kingdom doesn't agree. But Citizen #10: then, I suspect they wouldn't agree with anything that doesn't put them in Grigôriu majority. Möbléir

I know I've taken some pretty unusual actions on behalf of the ZPT. Please email me (gary_cone(at)excite.com) for more in-depth discussion, before you condemn me.

I've been trying like crazy to reach Ken, but both emails I used to have for him are dead (not to mention the entire Velméir .com domain), and the only phone # I have for him is actually his wife's cell! I left a message, but haven't had any response. Are they still together and on good terms?

What an enlightening day!

The Opposition has not changed one whit--still divisive, still petty, still angry. No shock to the system seems enough to calm them down.

Several personal appeals have been made for me to return. I appreciate them. Although the tone on Wittenberg is clearly "Ben, please come back. Ben, you're a creep."

So, I'm back. And I'm going to be a creep.

In the days ahead, I will be outlining a royal policy which, I hope, will end paranoia and personal vindictiveness once and for all in Talossa. This policy may result in the loss of one or more citizens. That is a shame. But we have lost citizens in the past, and Talossa has always survived and prospered. Schneider, Dobberpuhl, Dave Ardít, Adiêns Glaçâ, Regeuét Féu, Danihél Viac'htolt, Ceváglh Scurznicol, Ián Anglatzarâ... only the names change. Those of us who want Talossa to be a fun place to live in, remain.

Wasn't it Thomas Jefferson who said every generation needs a revolution?

So yes, I am back, but with a sword in my hand. Deal with it. :-)

- Enough! I was simply stating my pleasure of having Ben back in Talossa. I don't understand why you insist on insulting others. We may all have our differences but we can work through them in a peaceful and dignified fashion. And by the way, His Majesty is not just "my" King, as you imply in the above statement- but your King as well.

Mark --

I do not nderstand how easy it is for someone to fall right back into praising someone who does what Ben has done over ht elast 24 hours. He quit in a huff and then returned, issing veiled threats. How is this praiseworthy?

And if I seem upset by your behaviour, it's because you have consistently -- since your return -- praised the Royal Family even when THEY cross the line. I'm not looking for priase from you; I'm looking for some semblance of fair play. You came out and praised Amy when she called me "scum of the earth". You figure out why I'm upset here.

I am not going to speak for Ben; if Ben wishes to refute some of the comments and attacks being made against him that is his place to do so. All I will say is that I can understand why His Majesty felt the need to make the decision that he did. The attacks upon his character have gone too far.

And yes, since I became active again I have praised the Royal Family. As a staunch monarchist I do not believe in criticizing the Monarch in their capacity as Monarch (at least publicly, and certainly not in the vicious manner that some have). If I disagree with Ben (in his non-Royal role) then I do so. When I agree with Ben, that does not mean that I am his puppet.

I wish this fighting would end, but I guess that was too much to wish for.....

Yes, Maxime was a divisive choice. So was Chris. But Maxime was the majority's choice. And Max has conducted himself since the election like an absolute gentleman. Has Chris?

> Wes Aquliâ is not online.

Although if he were PM, that might just push him over the brink to get online. :-)

> And I do not wish to re-hash the brotherly love between certain other Talossans and your third choice for the PMship.

No, you probably don't--although personal vendettas against my wife seems like an awfully silly motivation for government policy, don't you think?

> Maybe if Wes had direct access to cybercit Talossa things might have gone differently for all of us.

Jeff, please read the Støtanneu article. There are a number of things that evidently still are not clear to you. Just to name a few:

1) The proposed Joint Statement was an attempt to SAVE YOUR GOVERNMENT. We wanted an equal, three-way consensus government where the MN would get 1/3 of the votes in council, thus allowing the PC and Greys to OUTVOTE us. Having Max as PM was NEVER a requirement under the agreement we outlined in the Joint Statement.

2) Your coalition government was sunk by Chirisch Cavéir . Cavéir saw the Joint Statement as a tactic to force the PC out of office. He saw opposition to the Joint Statement as a tactic to force the MN out of office. He never wanted your coalition to work. We did.

3) We were more than willing to work with you after we moved into the Opposition. We said so on Wittenberg, and we meant it.

4) Constitutionally, the appointment of Cavéir as PM would have had only temporary legitimacy. He would either have dissolved the government (something you could have done yourself, in which case why appoint Cavéir?) or else he would have lost the VOC because the majority was against him (in which case, why appoint Cavéir?). We had a choice between that scenario, and a majority government. What sensible, responsible leader would not choose the majority government?

> Ben, what's going on, here? When did Andy become one of the Evil People?

I never said Andy was "evil." I said (or at least implied) that he was "angry." And anger is the problem right now. What angry people need to do, is cool off and lose their anger. If Andy isn't angry any more, and won't make political decisions based on anger, then he's welcome back!

> >But we have lost citizens in the past, and Talossa has always survived and prospered.

> Maybe not this time, Ben. Maybe not this time.

"All change is evolution!" -- Mr Burns. :-)

Seriously, losing citizens is sometimes a tragedy and sometimes a blessing. Losing Dave Ardít was a blessing. Losing Glaçâ, a blessing. Losing Dobberpuhl, a blessing. Why? Because they were all angry people and they were steering Talossa away from a place where 'normal' Talossans can interact and party and write dictionaries and discuss politics and speak Talossan.

The problem right now is not Maxime, it's the anger directed at him.

> > Wasn't it Thomas Jefferson who said every generation needs a revolution?

> I think you are right. I guess this means a return to royal dictatorship.

Not at all. Constitutionally, that would be impossible anyway.

> By the way, I have spent HOURS today digesting Talossa when there are about twenty things I need to attend to here at home. I cannot do this forever.

Now you know exactly how I felt when I tried to renounce my citizenship. Please put yourself in my shoes, it should be easy. The only difference is, I've been putting up with unfair attacks now for fifteen years. So whatever it is you're feeling, multiply it by about a hundred and then maybe you'll understand what I'm going through. It should be an eye-opening experience. :-)

In other words, not going online has been a choice, rather than a decision based on finances, etc. (not that I am prying into his business, mind you). If this is correct, that's news to me. I know he does quite a bit behind the scenes with the Black Hand, and until his possible PMship became an issue, his being "Amish" never bothered me in the slightest. It was his business, not anyone else's.

But when it comes to being the Head of Government, which involves being in touch with not just Milwuakeans, but with Cybercitzia as well, his "Amish-ness" became our business. At least twice in my time as a Talossan, we have heard reports of Wes' coming to cyberspace, yet we still have no email for him. Again, that's his business, but how can you expect someone who seems to have no prospect of having the tools of direct communication with at least half the populace to be an acceptable Seneschál to a party made of some of the most-prominent cybercits, some of the most-prominent web designers, and the administrator of our discussion group?

> No, you probably don't--although personal vendettas against my wife seems like an awfully silly motivation for government policy, don't you think?

I think so!! That's why I phrased that in the way I did. And believe me, I have put Cavéir's feet to the fire on this one!

> Jeff, please read the Støtanneu article.

Believe me, I have been! I was up until 2:00am last evening working on a rather-lengthy personal non-party-line reaction to it. This is still in the works.

>There are a number of things that evidently still are not clear to you. Just to name a few:

> 1) The proposed Joint Statement was an attempt to SAVE YOUR GOVERNMENT. We wanted an equal, three-way consensus government where the MN would get 1/3 of the votes in council, thus allowing the PC and Greys to OUTVOTE us. Having Max as PM was NEVER a requirement under the agreement we outlined in the Joint Statement.

Correct on all counts! The Joint Statement could not have come at a worse time for me: the time when I was most "not-with-it" in my etherness which was just before I returned to Talossa full-tilt.

> 2) Your coalition government was sunk by Chirisch Cavéir . Cavéir saw the Joint Statement as a tactic to force the PC out of office. He saw opposition to the Joint Statement as a tactic to force the MN out of office. He never wanted your coalition to work.

I don't know about that.

>We did.

I believe you!

> 3) We were more than willing to work with you after we moved into the Opposition. We said so on Wittenberg, and we meant it.

And you showed it.

> 4) Constitutionally, the appointment of Cavéir as PM would have had only temporary legitimacy. He would either have dissolved the government (something you could have done yourself, in which case why appoint Cavéir?)

Had you vetoed my Transition Cabinet, I probably would have had the King dissolve things.

> or else he would have lost the VOC because the majority was against him (in which case, why appoint Cavéir?). We had a choice between that scenario, and a majority government. What sensible, responsible leader would not choose the majority government?

The majority was what I wanted in the first place, Ben. But your not one, not two, but three proffered candidates for PM did not pass muster for reasons outlined elsewhere.

> > Ben, what's going on, here? When did Andy become one of the Evil People?

Of course you didn't. I meant that figuratively. :-)

>I said (or at least implied) that he was "angry." And anger is the problem right now. What angry people need to do, is cool off and lose their anger. If Andy isn't angry any more, and won't make political decisions based on anger, then he's welcome back!

Return me to office immediately, and you will sooth a lot of anger, believe me!

> Seriously, losing citizens is sometimes a tragedy and sometimes a blessing. Losing Dave Ardít was a blessing.

Amen, brutha!

>Losing Glaçâ, a blessing. Losing Dobberpuhl, a blessing. Why? Because they were all angry people and they were steering Talossa away from a place where 'normal' Talossans can interact and party and write dictionaries and discuss politics and speak Talossan.

100% correct!

> The problem right now is not Maxime, it's the anger directed at him.

And what shall be Maxime's position on the Palestinean terrorists? Isreal? The Chechens?? The USA??

Then what are all these "royal policies" you keep talking about?? Where is this "sword" you threatened us with??

> > By the way, I have spent HOURS today digesting Talossa when there are about twenty things I need to attend to

The only difference is, I've been putting up with unfair attacks now for fifteen years. So whatever it is you're feeling, multiply it by about a hundred and then maybe you'll understand what I'm going through. It should be an eye-opening experience. :-)

I'll try. And I mean that sincerely.

Exactly. We do it because we want to.

> > So, I'm back. And I'm going to be a creep.

> Unfortunately, you have been acting more and more like a creep. This whole situation has devolved from a series of mis-understandings to mongering and gnashing of teeth.

Exactly. No matter how many times someone mentions "it was all a miscommunication/misunderstanding" Ben insists on claiming a conspiracy was at work.

> > In the days ahead, I will be outlining a royal policy

> Uh, oh... The Principal is mad now!! Please, Ben, don't give me detention.

And this threat of booting people out is just as absurd as you make it out to be, Jeff. Ben couldn't stand that Talossa managed to get along for a few hours without him, so he's come bursting in, threatening people.

> Boy, am I sounding like a child now?? Well, that is how you are sounding...like a bully. You aren't stupid. You knew Maxime to be a divisive choice given the reactions to his remarks in the past from many Talossans. Wes Aquliâ is not online. And I do not wish to re-hash the brotherly love between certain other Talossans and your third choice for the PMship. Maybe if Wes had direct access to cybercit Talossa things might have gone differently for all of us.

Sure. But if Madison had actually acknowledged that there was never any backstabbing or conspiracy in the first place, things would have gone differently as well.

> >which, I hope, will end paranoia and personal vindictiveness once and for all in Talossa. This policy may result in the loss of one or more citizens. That is a shame.

> Not really. This way, Ben's little world stays under his control and command. More and more, Ben, I am beginning to see that.

Disilusioning someone who was one of your biggest defenders is pretty damn screwed up. There's a lesson in there to be learned, but I doubt it will be.

> And you know when I started to see things differently? Here's when:

[snip't]

> No sincere concern for the loss of who had been one of the most-enthusiastic citizens we have ever had... No sincere word of welcome-back for someone who spent his own money and free time to come up to Milwaukee, Wisconsin to visit a bunch of people he had never met or seen before in his life!! Ben, what's going on, here? When did Andy become one of the Evil People?

When he sided with me. You see, I have committed the Major Crime of Disagreeing with Ben. And Andy was my Accomplice.

> >But we have lost citizens in the past, and Talossa has always survived and prospered.

> Maybe not this time, Ben. Maybe not this time.

Is it me or does Ben seem to be taking some glee in his "Talossan self-destruct sequence" manoeuvre?

The implication being that Cavéir has (and others have?) committed treason somehow.

Who consistently calls renunciators "traitors"? Who backed a Penguinian renunciator and then HIMSELF renounced? If renouncing is treason, then... figure it out.

> > Wasn't it Thomas Jefferson who said every generation needs a revolution?

Might as well bring back the Talossan astronauts, too.

> > So yes, I am back, but with a sword in my hand. Deal with it. :-)

Don't overlook the reference to Jesus in his little statement there ("Think not that I am come to send peace on earth: I come not to send peace, but a sword.").

Let's not forget another militant Jesus quote: "He that is not with me is against me." Sounds like Ben to me.

Ben thinks he's the Talossan Jesus. His view of Ar Pats as "scripture" was part of the proof ("The fact Grubi took the scripture numbers out [of Ár Päts], proves he's the Antichrist." -R. Rôibeard Donatüs, November 12, 2003, 18:14). Something is wrong with that mindset. Seriously.

> By the way, I have spent HOURS today digesting Talossa when there are about twenty things I need to attend to here at home. I cannot do this forever.

What is this continued bullshit? Oh, I see...the remainder of good, decent Talossans spend the day sorting laws out and quite obviously surviving your petulant childish temper tantrum, and we're blamed for it.

Go away and stay away.

> Several personal appeals have been made for me to return. I appreciate them. Although the tone on Wittenberg is clearly "Ben, please come back. Ben, you're a creep."

Note: there was a huge silence in this regard. I think a lot of people were actually beginning to feel some relief.

The only problem is that your self-appointed do-nothing nitwit PM has proven himself for what he is and what we all know him to be: totally useless without the Ben-strings attached.

Talossa with YOU in it has become for many people the farthest thing from a "fun place to live in." I just think you saw that: a) Talossa is inseparable from the Big Ben Ego (in your opinion), and b) we were moving along just fine without you.

Next time you decide to quit, please stay quit. Enough of this "I quit" ... "Oh, nevermind," crap.

> So yes, I am back, but with a sword in my hand. Deal with it. :-)

Fine, and if you do drive yet more citizens out of Talossa then you're nothing but a childish little petty asshole.

Deal with it.

This is one part I just don't understand. The PM and the Government have been noticeable only by their absence today. The rest of us were doing what we could to rally the country together to survive this Ben-created crisis. And we were doing a pretty good job of it, too. Despite entreaties, Carbonèl had nothing constructive to say, and DPM Conâ had nothing to say at all.

The Opposition were the only ones here trying to exercise a little leadership to keep Talossa in operation. The divisive, petty one was PM Carbonèl.

Thank you for your intervention. This brings to two the number of people in the Opposition willing to join the Government in appealing for calm. (Martì-Páir being the other.)

There is no "national crisis" in Talossa. Talossa has a legal, constitutional, majority government. Opposed by a loud, vociferous minority. Except for the emotions and motivations on the Opposition side, this is normal.

To Grigôriu Möbléir's proposal that Maxime should step down and form some sort of 'compromise' government: Greg, I appreciate your sentiments. I almost made the same proposal myself. The reason I didn't, is the disastrous precedent it would set: Whenever a violent minority lacked confidence in the government, it would mean the government was somehow duty-bound to dissolve itself. That is not what parliamentary government is all about.

Maxime is not PM today because of any 'childishness' on my part. He is there because the majority of the Cosâ elected him, to prevent an unpopular, illegitimate administration from being foisted on the country instead. No wrongs were done, no crimes were committed.

A couple of people have made the analogy that this 'crisis' is all about Talossa 'growing up' and doing something that I (as creator and founder) didn't want it to do. This analogy is false. What Talossa's elected representatives wanted to do, was elect a majority government under Mximo Carbonèland Dixhêt Conâ. So they did it. And that should be the end of the story.

It shocks me that certain individuals have now been in opposition for eleven days and it certainly looks to me like they can't handle it, emotionally. That's a shame. When the MN moved into opposition, we made a promise: We would try to work with the government, and we would not automatically give a knee-jerk "no" on the VOC. Will the PC and Greys show the same class?

Remember, folks, he has been waylaid by the bus strike in Montreal! This is what I call "mitigating circumstances", people.

However, my Vote of No Confidence has not changed. The simple reason is that his legacy of vitriol and nuttiness is too long too pronounced for me to consent to having a PM who would want to impose those kinds of views on our nations's foreign policy.

This is an official deal to the opposition party.

1) Another clark why?

To let Marc Môisi join the fight

To let Márcüs Cantaloûr Postal Election Reform bill be vote the ZIU.

2) After this clark the Cosa will be dissolve for new election. January/February election 2004.

3) Be sure of one thing I will run for PM again. Let democracy roll on. And if the people choose me I ask the opposition to let me run a 6 months gouvernement.

Though I'm not in the Opposition, and I note (pointedly) that nobody in the Opposition has answered you, let me express my opinion. :-)

Well, as you know, I'm not wild about the idea of holding elections that early. But this is your call--you're running the government and I'm not. Contrary to some reports. ;-) But I'll support you if this is what you want to do.

> 3) Be sure of one thing I will run for PM again. Let democracy roll on. And if the people choose me I ask the opposition to let me run a 6 months government.

This is really the key: If Maxime and the Coalition are elected to a majority in their own right, will the Opposition respect the will of the people? One thing is certain: If the PC and Greys get a majority and form a government, we will remain a loyal and productive Opposition.

Because it is something you are in favor of! Getting the Madison-Carbonèl-Conâ government elected in its own right would suit you quite nicely especially on the heels of throwing Roadkill Válcadác'h out the window.

If you run things smoothly and if your party is elected once more, then it is more likely you will receive my VOC.

Absolutely!

Ben, you are a politician with no soul, it seems. You seem incapable of understanding that we in the Opposition were personally affronted and offended by your throwing me out of office. Quite frankly, I am still angry over it.

And you wonder why I don't serve in Maxime's Cabinet...

No, it is not something I am in favour of. I would like Government to go on a few more months, in hopes that Opposition tempers will subside. Maybe Max has made the political calculation that they never will. I don't know. I don't run the government.

That is a start! Jeff, one more statement like that and I might just be able to see the Jeff of old that we all love and miss. (And, quite frankly, whose disappearance has been one of the most bizarre aspects of this whole mess--sometimes I swear you've been replaced by a pod-clone and Mic'háglh Pop is writing your posts.)

> Ben, you are a politician with no soul, it seems. You seem incapable of understanding that we in the Opposition were personally affronted and offended by your throwing me out of office.

Jeff, one more time now: We did not throw YOU out of office. We acted to prevent CAVÉIR from taking over the country in an unpopular, illegitimate, unelected minority government against the will of the Cosâ. You were already throwing yourself out of office when we elected a majority government.

> Quite frankly, I am still angry over it.

I apologized, and I thought you had accepted my apology. Whichever way it is, I apologized, and I will do so until the cows come home, because hurting you was not at all what our intention was. We tried to save your government and your legacy through the Joint Statement, but Cavéir decided that political deal-making and brinksmanship was more important than all that.

Howdies, all,

What a fab night I'm having! I can hardly contain myself! Brought the mom-cat home from her delicate little operation in which an incipient litter of harmless cute little kittens were ripped from her womb. Her ovaries went along with 'em, too. Now she seems a bit distant for some reason.

But wait, it gets better!

It would appear, judging by the fact that an R.J. Reynolds (motto: "We'll kill ya, but you'll really like it!") unfiltered Camel is smoldering 'twixt my lips, that I have (after 67 days of not smoking, but who's counting) resumed my death-wish habit. Hoo-haa, we're having some big fun NOW! Next step, Gauloise! Or maybe just inhaling some DDT straight from the can. Whoa yeah. Anybody know where I can get some plutonium? Now THAT's some good inhaling! Not Wal-Mart brand, mind you, I want the good stuff.

Had me some wine and cranked up some serious tuneage. Weird shit from my distant past that I never ever listen to any more-- like Marianne Faithfull (hoo-whee, that Broken English is a gas), Blondie (what ever happened to those mirrored disco balls, anyway?), Robert Fripp (how the hell many fingers does he have on his fret hand, anyway? 37?), Squeeze, Bruford, and so forth. Topped it all off with Lennon's "Mind Games" (six reps back to back).

And I "danced" to all of it, too! Well, as much as an old guy kinda shuffling around the living room can be called "dancing". I got the hand jive DOWN, though.

Then I played myself a game of Cricket on the dartboard. I won. Or lost, depending on your point of view.

Had a good long chat with Pete The Dog about Kierkegaard, and he had some good input there. He prefers Wittgenstein, though.

So, what's been going on with you-all? Anything been happening? Or is it just the same-old, same-old?

Been thinking about Buicks. A '68 LeSabre sure would look mighty fine in the driveway. Maybe a dark red one, with black leather on the inside. With lotsa dust on the dashboard. I always like that in a car. Helps to quiet the road noise a bit, I've found.

Finished up a huge-assed project at work today and rolled the programming out to the stores, so I'm all "power to the people, dude, right on". You dig?

My mother has completey flipped her gourd. She's moving house, so she decided to send me a bunch of wierd stuff. A lot of books-- some of them are about conducting orchestras. And a bunch of LP's. 'Course, she sent me a record player first, so I could listen to them. One of the records is of my junior-high choir concert. (It's surprisingly good.) I put that one on and listened to it, and I somehow still remember my part, all the words, everything, but here's the catch-- I tried singing along and suddenly realized that I was a freakin' SECOND TENOR then-- shit, can't hit THOSE notes anymore. Kinda freaky, know what I'm sayin'?

So, what's been happening? Everybody okay out there? Everything smooove? Anything going on?

Good rappin' atcha,

Glad to see that you are smoking again! (Well, not really- it is a dirty and disgusting habit- but one that I also indulge in!)

"He who doth not smoke; hath either known no great sorrow in this life; or denieth himself the greatest consolation other than that which cometh from heaven"

-I am not sure who said this, I have it in a cigar book of mine somewhere. :)

Right now I am hooked on menthol cigarettes- or "after dinner mints," as I call them. I used to always smoke Benson and Hedges Extra Mild King Size. I convinced myself one time when I had a cold and sore throat that menthol would be easier on my throat, and since then I have been hooked!

At some point over the next two years I plan to quit, but not yet.

Howdy,

I don't know if they are available where you are, but R.J. Reynolds makes a nifty menthol called "Mandarin"-- it's menthol (quite mild) and orange. Sounds wierd, but very tasty. I'd smoke 'em if they came in a nonfilter.

This round of smoking won't last long for me-- I'll be starting over in a few days. When not smoking, I enjoy nasal snuff. Not much nicotine, sadly, but at least I get to continue using tobacco!

I think you would be within your rights to characterise my sense of humour as "quirky". It's the result of reading far too many issues of the New Yorker when I was young. That, and Ionesco...

ROFL!!!

Sounds like you had yourself a bit of fun, Andy. :-)

What are some of the titles of those orchestra books yer mum sent you?

Also, a long time ago in an IM chat we had you recommended a book to me, but the chat transcript was lost when my HD finally bit the dust. You wouldn't by chance remember the name of that book, would you?

Yo,

> What are some of the titles of those orchestra books yer mum sent you?

The ones on conducting are:

"Essentials in Conducting", Karl Gehrrens, 1919

"The School Music Conductor", Paul van Bodegraven and Harry Robert Wilson, 1942

"The Grammar of Conducting", Max Rudolf, 1950 (forward by George Szell !!)

There are also some assorted tomes on the flute and clarinet. And a bunch of stuff on music theory and history. One of the real prizes is a slender thing called "Lessons in Music Form-- A Manual of Analysis of all the Structural Factors and Designs Employed in Music Composition" by one Percy Goetschius, from 1904.

> Also, a long time ago in an IM chat we had you recommended a book to me, but the chat transcript was lost when my HD finally bit the dust. You wouldn't by chance remember the name of that book, would you?

Oh lordy-- I remember the occurrence of the conversation, but little of its content. If I was touting my favorite book at you (which seems likely), then it would have been "Zen and the Art of Motorcycle Maintenance" by Robert Pirsig. I've re-read it annually for about 25 years.

Wow! I like to go to the library on campus and dig for some of those old one just to see what is still "correct" today.

> "The Grammar of Conducting", Max Rudolf, 1950 (forward by George Szell !!)

Szell was a Cleveland, righ?

> Oh lordy-- I remember the occurence of the conversation, but little of its content. If I was touting my favorite book at you (which seems likely), then it would have been "Zen and the Art of Motorcycle Maintenance" by Robert Pirsig. I've re-read it annually for about 25 years.

No, it was either a history book or a historical novel, maybe something to do with indigenous Americans or Plains history?

Yes-- he was my favorite Beethoven interpreter. Cleveland did a recording of the five piano concertos with Szell and Artur Rubenstein that kicks some serious ass. I wore out two sets as a teenager.

Hoo-boy.... I dunno. The only thing that comes to mind is William Least Heat Moon's "PrairyErth", which I might have mentioned because of your general locale. It's a book about the American Plains, focussing on a county in Kansas. It's definitely in my top ten. Does that sound familiar?

Oh, you are in for a treat! You might also enjoy his first book too-- "Blue Highways". It's basically a huge solo road trip all over the USA, chock full of bits of history and interesting observations regarding the various forms of American culture. One of my favorite ideas in it is his method of rating roadside restaurants-- his hypothesis is that the more calendars the place has on the wall, the better the place is. My experience would tend to support that.

I'd be interested in your impressions of his work.

Smiles, everybody! :-)

Talossa's Happy Coalition Government is working for you, doing positive things, getting on with the real business of Talossa.

Márcüs Cantaloûr is doing research on Talossan history and working on the issue of postal ballots and how to make them work.

Quedéir Castighâ has written a really cool paper on the Defence and Foreign Ministries and their function in Talossan society. (I confess I haven't had time to do more than skim this yet. Sorry Q! ;-)

Rôibeard Donatüs has just finished a comprehensive proof-read of the 200+ page English-Talossan, Talossan-English Dictionaries and has made more than 3,600 corrections and harmonizations in vocabulary, spelling, and usage in preparation for the (still ongoing) 2004 Supplement which will hopefully be published in 2004 (otherwise we'll have to change the name).

As a group, we in Talossa's Happy Government are talking to new people about Talossa, renewing old friendships and making new friends. If this sounds good to you, if this sounds like the Talossa you joined, then stick with it and join us--there is a happy, non-bloviating Talossa going on, and the invitation to join it is always there.

Riiiiiiight. Talossa's government is happy because ben said so. Riiiiiiight.

Ben, you are utterly incapable of being "non-bloviating", and you know it. You are incapable of caring about someone else's feelings, incapable of having a friend you don't take advantage of, and incapable of grasping reality firmly and holding on. This latest round of "happy-happy joy-joy" is your weird attempt to mask the odour emanating from your puppet government. Nice try, Chester. It won't work.

And don't think we don't notice how THE SENESCHÁL IS ABSENT FROM YOUR LIST OF ACTIVE GOVERNMENT WORKERS.

Azul,

Just got off the phone with Marti-Páir.

He informs me that he has re-established contact with Ken Velméir (I don't know if this is true or not) and that, according to Marti-Páir's interpretation of the Organic Law, all Cosâ seats (yours, mine, his, and everybody's) become vacant at the end of each month!

This means that Marti-Páir is going to declare Dixhêt Conâ's ZPT seats "vacant," hand control of them to Ken, and then Ken is going to form a "majority government" with Gödafriëu Válcadác'h (!) as Seneschál.

There are numerous constitutional problems and outright illegalities involved here. If I have time someday, I will discuss them.

If Marti-Páir actually attempts this illegal stripping of Dixhêt Conâ's seats, there will be absolute hell to pay. This proves that the PC has absolutely no respect whatsoever for the Organic Law, the rule of law, or any other good and decent principle.

I will defend Talossa against this crap. This is what the Monarchy is for. And if I lose this battle, then I am gone for good. Those are the stakes. Play ball.

King Robert I

My personal reading of the OrgLaw tells me that:

Art. VII:Sec. 4. Each person holding a seat is a correspondent representative known as a "Member of the Cosâ" (MC). MCs may not be removed from office except by a two-thirds vote by the Cosâ and approval by the King. An MC vacates his seats if he fails to vote on two consecutive Clarks, or if he resigns from office or dies. Any seats left unassigned at the end of the first Clark of the government are considered vacant.

No seats are currently unassigned and therefore no members of the Cosâ can be removed from office except by a two-thirds vote by the Cosâ and approval by the King.

If I reassign only 6 of the 7 seats of Ken, Gary is still a Member of the Cosâ and he is not removed from office...

This is what I will do. I will not reassign seats illegally, but reassigning 6 of the seat appears to be legal, since Gary is then NOT removed from office.

There is NO protection agains't removing some of the seats.

What gives you the right to reassign seats at whim? Where in the OrgLaw does it say you can do this?

There IS protection from being removed from any held seats. The only way those seats can be reassigned according to the OrgLaw is if Gary fails to vote on two consecutive Clarks, resigns or dies. If he does none of those, he still legally occupies all seven seats and cannot be removed except by 2/3 Cosa vote and the King.

I am really beginning to question your ability to be SoS if you are taking unilateral action under the auspices of your office.

If you try to remove Gary in any fashion from his lawfully occupied Cosa seats, you will face legal action.

Citizen #6:

Gödafríeu Válcadác'h

Forty years ago, a street in Dallas was drenched with the blood of a President.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was assassinated four decades ago today, thus paving the way for Lyndon B. Johnson, who, no matter what you think of what he did, did many big things for and/or to the United States, and, in an indirect fashion, the world.

Forty years ago today, it could be said, the "sixties" began and did not end until the fall of Saigon about twelve years later.

Mr. President, may you continue to rest in peace.

Jeff

Azul, Talossans,

I wish to direct the Minister of Immigration to withdraw my application for Talossan citizenship.

While I was hopeful that more Talossan citizens would have read my post on Perspectives from a Prospective, and consequently taken the advice from moderate voices amidst an ever-growing chaotic chorus within the kingdom, I fear that the current climate is not only unsuitable for my pursuit of citizenship, but is also not the climate that I thought I was petitioning to join. Certainly, in lurking over Wittenberg over numerous years, I have never seen such childish antics and un-statesmen-like comportment from so many figures that I have personally respected and admired.

Between the King threatening to wage a personal vendetta against anyone who opposes his views, to members of the Opposition and the Government conspiring to undermine one another at every conceivable opportunity, to actual real life friendships behind Talossa being torn apart at the seams... Talossa just does not present itself as the nation that I know she can be, or the nation to which I had aspired to immigrate.

I hope that you understand, and respect my decision. I will continue to lurk, and hope that one day, I can resurface on Talossa. Regrettably, that time is not now.

Regards,

Ián Tamorán

On behalf of the Ministry of Immigration I would like to express my regret over the decision of Ián Tamorán to withdraw his citizenship application. Becoming a Talossan citizen is of course a personal choice, and I respect Ián's decision.

Hopefully, one day he will reconsider. Ián Tamorán would have added so much to the life of our Kingdom.

At this time I would urge citizens to stop their personal attacks, bickering and back room politics. It is this fighting; NOT the government that is tearing Talossa apart.

We have been willing to put this crisis aside, but it is apparent that certain members of the Opposition are not willing to do so.

Azul,

After a midnight meeting with all the members of the Coalition (MN - ZPT).

I Maxime Paquin-Carbonèl, Seneschál of Talossa, ask the king to dissolve the current COSA.

I ask the SoS to prepare this election.

I ask the SoS to show a complet neutral position.

I also name Márcüs Cantaloûr as the MN SoS office observer during this election.

Done 23 november 2003.

People of Talossa , you have now the important duty to choose between a Carbonèl governement or another PC-GCP governement. People of Talossa I trust you to make the best choice and to let Talossa grow over this major crisis.

So once again the Black Hand and the Carbonèl Government are turning on a dime and flip-flopping positions, based solely on political expediency. Wasn't the Black Hand position last week that new elections were not necessary? And now Carbonèl is calling for new elections, even though he has not lost the Vote of Confidence.

Is this what we are to expect from a future Carbonèl Government? Cut and run at the first sign of trouble? All stated positions are subject to immediate reversal depending on the political situation?

If this election goes down, we should all remember this.

I mean this sincerely, btw.:

Quedéir and others are now getting up-to-speed on the business of governing, it seems, and that encourages me mightily! It's quite good to see new faces in the ranks of Talossa's Civil Service, and it's good to see those faces doing good things for Talossa, it seems despite the utter divisiveness of PM Carbonèl. Quedéir is making sense with his Foreign Ministry work, and I have seen no complaints so far against IM Hamilton.

Maxime, your newbie government was just getting off-the-ground, and now you have hosed it and foisted another election on the people of Talossa on the heels of the last one. Ben was against this move (a few days ago, anyway), and so am I still (yes, I was seeing real and positive signs of hope from your Cabinet which is filled with worthy folks like Q and Mark -- I was actually a bit excited about this government's short-term future and its long-term ability to get the day-to-day governance of the government done in an orderly manner), but there is nothing we can do about it now. What's done is done.

Well, one of the problems, however, of this gov't was the fact that it had so few active, involved people. I mean, as compared to the major amounts of talent the PC and GCP and ZPT could put into office.

The MAIN problem being the fairly inert PM himself. Then again, next to Jeff, a highspeed train looks inert. ;-)

Well, Jeff, it is highly unlikely Max did this without Ben's approval (read: instructions). After all, the MN unwritten motto is: "Think as Ben does...ONLY as Ben does." ;-)

Well, fine. We'll have elections much sooner than anticipated. This might be a good thing as things have gotten so totally screwed up.

As Clemenza says in "The Godfather" about the occasional bloodletting between mafia families: "Ya gotta have a war now and then...it gets out the bad blood."

First, the PM does not dissolve the Cosâ, this is the duty of the King (OrgLaw Art. XII, Sec. 3). Now, I realise that I can't ask the King not to dissolve it because he is required by law, but having a personal stake to it and considering that the VOC still shows a higher support in favour of the government than against. I am requesting that the PM reconsider before the King issues the writ.

I would also point out that the PM is not even trying to make the government work or let someone else attempt to form a viable government.

Very good point, Marc.

The issue always was Maxime's suitability as PM. He has demonstrated that he has no leadership ability, and no skills at uniting the country. During the Ben Renunciation Crisis, he complained and cast stones, but did absolutely nothing constructive. Are we to expect that these qualities will somehow change with a new election?

Citizen #20:

Martí- Paír Furxhéir

I was requested, by Ken Velméir , leader of the ZPT party to assign him the 7 ZPt seats for the second clark.

As SoS it is my duty to assign the seats to the parties. I do not choose to whom to assign the seats.

Any "Frenette coup" reference is therefore invalid : I am not the one requesting the seats, I am merely the official entering the data, in an IMPARTIAL NON-PARTISAN way, the same way the King nominates Maxime in a non partisan way.

Both Ben and I had to take hard decisions that, in both cases, helped our respective parties gain control of the Cosâ.

But it doesn't change the fact that we both acted in a non partisan way.

There is still the legality of my actions thought. Ben's action was clearly legal, but mine wasn't that clear.

So let me recap the situations.

since I have been Secretary of State, I have been assigning seat for parties EACH CLARK according to the wishes of the party leaders.

Ben says he didn't recall me asking officially the PC members, but it doesn't change the fact that I still followed party leaders orders clark by clark.

I might have been wrong all the time thought, and we'll see later my thoughts on this.

So, based on what I THOUGHT was the way seat assignment worked, when Ken Velméir (leader of the ZPT) asked me to assign the 7 seats

IMMEDIATLY to him when the Clark was not completed, I refused : to my knowledge, we could only reassign them on the next clark.

So he requested that the seats be reassigned to him as soon as the clark was over, which I did, and I even informed King Robert I IMMEDIATLY to show some transparency.

I couldn't prior to the reassignment, since it was requested it be kept silent.

Now, it was pointed out to me that I could remove Gary as Member of the Cosâ.

As soon as I realized that, I :

1 - proposed to let him keep 1 seats, as such, he is still member of the Cosâ 2 - I called the 2 UC judges I had phone numbers (Remember, I didn't Ken's phone number with me this week-end, but I will try to call him tonight and ask his legal opinion : when he asked the seats, he didn't review the orglaw prior to it, and judges cannot be expected to know the full law in their head).

Both IM and Valadéir are unanimous after reading the Orglaw, Ben's statements, and my statements (which also included a few arguments agaisn't my position and in Gary's favor). They also reviewed the TLFN precedant.

They both say (in different words) that the Orglaw protects a Member of the Cosä from being removed, but not from losing SOME of his seats.

As such, it is illegal for Ken to remove ALL sevens seats from Gary, but it is legal for him to reassign 6 of them to himself.

Valadéir goes even further. He says that it is not 100% clear that Gary could have gotten the seats in the first place. He is not saying he couldn't get them. Only that there is cort material on that. He might very well rule that Gary could get them but unlike the right of Ken to reassign the 6 seats, it is not clear that Gary had the right to get the seats without looking more in details and consulting the other cort justice.

As such, since I have the legal opinion of 2 of the 3 cort justice, I consider that it was within my legal power to reassign the 6 seats to Ken Velméir .

Of course, these were only legal opinions, not a cort judgement. Someone would have to sue me for an official decision.

M-P,

Thank you for clearing some things up; I had formulated some ideas without all the information.

However, if this situation is allowed to proceed, it is in my opinion important to iron out the incongruities I see in the OrgLaw regarding the matter, and I will sue for an official judgment (not for retaliation.)

That's ok !

I was thinking of possibly suing myself, in order to really clear things up...

But let's wait until we know if the seats mean something... if there is an election, it will be pointless and the next Cosä will be able to ammend the orglaw anyway.

On the basis of this thorough legal review, it would appear that the Secretary of State is acting in accordance with both the law and the wishes of the ZPT party, which owns the seats in question, in reassigning 6 or the 7 ZPT seats to ZPT Party Leader Ken Velméir .

Based on this seat reassignment, and keeping in mind that Talossa has no tradition of minority governments, I hereby call on the King to honor the will of the majority of the Cosa and appoint Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as Seneschál.

This is a partisan post, not issued by the SoS...

Yet, I am speaking for Myself, not for the PC, the GCP, the ZPT or anyone other than Myself.

The Cort has confirmed the legality of the reassignment of 6 of the ZPT seats.

Maxime is now requesting a new election.

I feel this is unfair to the people of Talossa who just recently went to the Polls, and did elect a majority government, in the form of a MN-PC-GCP coalition. It is OUR DUTY as Elected Cosâ members, to keep a coalition running.

This is unfair to Gödafriëu Válcadác'h who was elected for PM and should have been in power until January 1st, though it is unclear if elections should occur that that period in time or not.

This is unfair to Marc Môisi and my wife, who would probably become citizen on the next clark, and thus, will not get to vote in that deciding election.

This is unfair to Ken Velméir , who at the time of the seat assignments was moving from California to Washington state and was temporarily out of touch.

This is unfair, since now that the ZPT seats are now splitted between 6 to Ken and 1 to Gary, the coalition in power is the ZPT-GCP-PC coalition, with Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as Prime-Minister.

This is unfair, since it doesn't give time to the King to appoint Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as PM, now that he controls the Cosâ.

This is unfair to Mximo Carbonèlwho is pictured as a coward, afraid of giving power to Jeff in the Cosâ, preparing his time to fight in the next election for regaining that power, since he feels that he can win that next election.

The majority of the Cosa is in support of a Gödafriëu Válcadác'h Government. Mximo Carbonèl does not have the backing of the Cosa, and should withdraw his request for a dissolution of that body and allow the new Government to take effect.

> This is unfair to Gödafriëu Válcadác'h who was elected for PM and should have Reappointing Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as PM would go farther toward restoring unity and resolving this crisis as any other action that could be taken. Jeff was a victim of the Halloween Massacre. Appointing him back to the office he was unfairly evicted from would go a long way toward rebuilding the bonds of trust between both sides in this unhappy affair.

> This is unfair to Marc Môisi and my wife, who would probably become citizen

A very important election.

> This is unfair to Ken Velméir , who at the time of the seat assignments was Ken Velméir , as ZPT party leader, was disenfranchised himself when his party's seats were given to Dixhêt Conâ without his consent.

> and 1 to Gary, the coalition in power is the ZPT-GCP-PC coalition, with Gödafriëu Válcadác'h

It is important to honor the will of the majority, as expressed by the balance of power in the Cosa. The majority of the Cosa does not want new elections - they want Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as PM.

> This is unfair, since it doesn't give time to the King to appoint Gödafriëu Válcadác'h

Maxime could do a lot to repair his own damaged image by gracefully accepting this and preparing to fight the next, regularly scheduled, election.

The Cort confirmed that the 6 seats CAN be reassigned to Ken.

The Majority of the Cosâ in now in a ZPT-GCP-PC coalition, with Jeff as Prime-minister.

Once it will be confirmed that Ken Velméir DID ask me those seats,

Here is a list of options :

- 1 - The King can dissolve the Cosâ and call an electio
- 2 - This King can refuse to dissolve the Cosâ and keep Maxime as PM. The VOC will fail, and we will have an election after the next clark. in that case, we will have a TOTALLY non functional Cosâ.
- 3 - The King can do the right thing and nominate Jeff as Prime-Minister and have a totally functional Cosâ in the next clark.

In the third option he will be able to propose Chirisch Cavéir as cort justice and even possibly someone to replace John John as Justice.

I am pretty sure the new coalition will be able to guarantee that Cavéir will not be DPM (and thus future PM)

We are still discussing who the next DPM will be, but we agree in advance to let Ben know of our choice before he assigns Jeff as PM.

As such, he will know FOR SURE who would be the next PM once Jeff steps out.

No, it is not. Under the Organic Law, the King must ask someone to form a government. Nobody else can do so. Mximo Carbonèlis Seneschál.

> Once it will be confirmed that Ken Velméir DID ask me those seats,

Martì-Páir, will you please forward Ken's phone number to me, as I requested?

> In the third option he will be able to propose Chirisch Cavéir as cort justice

Because of his conduct over the past month, there is now no conceivable scenario under which Chirisch Cavéir will ever serve as a Cort Justice in the Kingdom of Talossa.

> I am pretty sure the new coalition will be able to guarantee that Cavéir will not > be DPM (and thus future PM)

I will be meeting with Justice Metáiriâ tomorrow to discuss a possible grand compromise along these grounds, a compromise which, if internal reports from the PC are accurate, will be pleasing to all sides.

> As such, he will know FOR SURE who would be the next PM once Jeff steps out.

The exact nature of the government is still in legal flux. As I stated above, Mximo Carbonèlis the Seneschál of Talossa. The composition of a future government is not settled. For my part, I believe that returning to the status quo ante and appointing Quedéir Castighâ, as representative of the plurality party, would be the best option if the Cort's decision on the ZPT seats is legal.

For this legal manoeuvre to be perceived as just, it must result in an all-party government.

However, absolutely nothing is final on this front, or any front, until I speak with Justice Metáiriâ, with Ken Velméir , and with Seneschál Carbonèl.

I am eager for a compromise to end this pointless bickering, but a compromise is something in which both sides make concessions.

Well...M-P isn't quite correct here, I'm afraid. All I can say is that we discussed this matter over the phone recently. He explained what he was going to do and asked my opinion, not for a "ruling" of any sort. I gave him my opinion, and emphatically stated that there is no formal Cort ruling on this matter as we have not even discussed it amongst ourselves!

Secondly, we would not be taking it up unless someone sued someone. That hasn't happened.

As of now, the SoS made what he believes to be a perfectly legal action regarding the 7 ZPT seats. Whether or not this matters much anymore given what's going on remains to be seen, but the bottom line is: no Cort ruling one way or t'other.

Nice little clause there, hey? ;-) Actually, the King is correct here. The real crisis would come when Ken tried to vote with the seats, and so did Gary! The SoS would, I presume, count them as he has decided to count them after talking to Ken and that would be where someone sues someone I am sure! But, as I said, this may be moot anyway.

How about the scenario where you are no longer King? ;-)

OK, bad joke.

Does that "all" include the Greys? :-) Thought not. WSAS.

In that order of importance. ;-)

Be that as it may, I will remind the King that Talossa has no tradition of minority government. Mximo Carbonèlis opposed by a majority of the Cosa, so I ask the King to consider honoring the will of the majority and appoint Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as PM.

A grand compromise that is pleasing to all sides would, of course, be something that we could all support.

Hear, hear!

Please honor the will of the Cosa. The majority in the Cosa does not want new elections, they want Gödafriëu Válcadác'h as PM.

> Once it will be confirmed that Ken Velméir DID ask me those seats,

Thus flip-flopping from the Black Hand's earleir position that new elections were not necessary - demonstraing the MN will change positions for political expediency

> 2 - This King can refuse to dissolve the Cosâ and keep Maxime as PM.

Which would go against Talossan tradition. As the Black Hand was so fond of telling us, Talossa has NO tradition of minority government. That was the justification given for ousting Gödafriëu Válcadác'h, consistency demands that the same rules are used now, to honor the will of the Cosa.

- > The VOC will fail, and

- > Cosâ.

And will waste 2 months that could otherwise be productive.

- > 3 - The King can do the right thing and nominate Jeff as Prime-Minister and have a totally functional Cosâ in the next clark.

The Opposition formally calls on King Robert I to honor the will of the Cosa and do just that.

- > In the third option he will be able to propose Chirisch Cavéir as cort justice and even possibly someone to replace John John as Justice.
- >
- > I am pretty sure the new coalition will be able to guarantee that Cavéir will not be DPM (and thus future PM)

If Chirisch Cavéir is elevated to the Cort, he will not be eligible for the DPM-ship. Thus removing the entire source of contention that led the Black Hand into starting the Halloween Crisis in the first place.

- > We are still discussing who the next DPM will be, but we agree in advance to let
- > Ben know of our choice before he assigns Jeff as PM.

- > As such, he will know FOR SURE who would be the next PM once Jeff steps out.

This is acceptable to the Opposition. Is it now acceptable to the King?

> Frankly, whether or not Ben does return, I daresay Max's days are numbered. His inability to lead and the fact that there are more active Talossans energized against him than for him should be rather telling.

I was thinking about that this morning. The fundamental problem the Black Hand had was to mistake their electoral strength for political strength.

The fact is that a disproportionate percentage of Black Hand voters are inactive, unengaged citizens who essentially vote for whichever party Ben is in, and then pay Talossa no further heed until the next election.

Because there are so many of these voters, the Black Hand ended up as the largest single party. The problem is that this support at the election polls does not translate into real political strength, as the majority of MN supporters don't participate in Talossa.

Thus, while on paper it would appear that Maxime had a majority of Talossans behind him, in practice that was never the case. The majority of active, engaged citizens have always been against the idea of appointing him PM, and that is why the Opposition has been so united in their objections to the Black Hand.

If the Black Hand continues as a party, and are led by Rôibeard Donatüs, they ought to keep this in mind. Their electoral strength gives them tactical advantages - allows them to participate in selecting the makeup of the Government, or gives them clout to pass particular bills. But to try to actually run the government is a fatal overreach, as the majority of active Talossan citizens do not support them, their vision, or their pretension to be a popular movement.

If you people would pay as much attention to keeping in touch with old friends as I do, this wouldn't be a problem.

Another thing, is (except from Matthias, who I will admit has been consistent on this issue, even though he's wrong :-)) that we never heard a peep of complaints out of the PC during all the years that the so-called 'pocket votes' voted to keep you in power against the Left. And that applies as well in the January 2003 election where a small majority of the 'inactive' vote went for the PC over the MN.

Complaining about the voters is the sign of a sore loser.

This is beside the point. When I was PM, the PC consistently got the majority of votes of active voters as well as of inactive voters. By contrast, the overwhelming majority of Black Hand voters are inactive voters. This disproportionality is the root of the Black Hand's problem.

You'll notice I refrained from using the loaded term "pocket voter".

> Complaining about the voters is the sign of a sore loser.

I wasn't complaining about the voters. There was no value judgement at all here - just the simple observation that, for the Black Hand Party, strength at the polls is almost entirely due to support from inactive citizens, hence the Black Hand Party does not have the kind of real political strength other parties have. The majority of PC and GCP supporters are online and active, and will back up the policies of these parties. The majority of Black Hand supporters have no stake in, and no interest in, what happens in Talossa, and cannot be relied upon to back up the Black Hand's policies.

Precisely. That and Ben's inability to see that there is a world beyond his little nucleus.

Exactly! Ask a Black hand voter's opinion of Mximo Carbonèlas PM or Ben's renunciation... odds are they've never heard of either.

Ben can say that in other countries people remained as informed as they want to remain. But in Talossa, where the population is much smaller, the level of participation and interest in the political goings-on should be much greater. This is simple group dynamics here. By propping up himself under the bodies of the uninformed and uninterested, the cloud of illegitimacy hangs around the MN, whether Ben wants to admit it or not.

Go fuck yourself.

Be of good cheer, Tomas - a possible end to this is in sight.

If the King honors the will of the majority of the Cosa and appoints Gödafrieu Válcadác'h as PM, we can get started on working to re-unify the nationette. With Chris nominated for the Uppermost Cort, the Coalition would need to select a new Deputy Seneschál, so the one stumbling block that the Black Hand had with Jeff (assuming they were being honest) is now a moot issue.

Chirisch Cavéir will never be nominated for the Uppermost Cort. Over the past month, I have given him every opportunity to demonstrate that his personal conduct is worthy of the most powerful position in the land. It is not. There will be no nomination of Cavéir to the Cort, ever, until the end of time, so long as I am Head of State. So the whole point is moot.

On all other issues, I am willing to compromise. And compromise involves BOTH sides making concessions for it to work.

Just so you guys know...I really didn't think that was anybody (except Ben's) intent, but it's still good to get confrimation, especially for Chris's sake. I think Chris is concerned that Talossans will give in to the whims of the King and leave him (Chris) to fall by the wayside. BTW, his concerns are the result of many other things that have happened in his life and how he feels about himself, not how he feels about any of you guys to be sure.

The point is not the intent; the point is the result. Whenever Ben wants to marginalise someone, he gets away with it. That is the point.

We are willing to discuss a compromise, but the first condition must be the replacement of Mximo Carbonèl with Gödafriëu Válcadác'h. Maxime does not have the support of the majority of the Cosa, while Jeff does. (Your desire to verify this with Cort members is, of course, a reasonable one.)

More important to me is to verify things with Ken Velméir , but Martì-Páir has pointedly refused to give me Velméir 's phone number to confirm that this alleged transaction actually took place, and what the actual terms of it were.

I NEVER REFUSED.

I said the phone number was at work, and that I would give it to you Monday.

Only, I didn't have time at work, so I sent it to you a few minutes ago.

Stop thinking Ben that everyone is out to get you or is lying to you.

I am personally insulted by the venom you spit on me : first you accuse me of lying, and then of refusing to give you his phone number even though I told you I didn't have it with me.

It was stated at the outset that if Maxime didn't work out, he could -- possibly -- resign in my favor.

Would this be acceptable to the Opposition?

I seem to recall statements from your side to the effect that I would have been less controversial as PM in the first place. Do you stand by that?

If -- IF -- this were to come to pass, it would certainly be helpful if I had an experienced Deputy.

But this becomes impossible if Ken yanks the ZPT seats out from under me. If he & I ever get a chance to talk, maybe we can settle it between us. That is my hope at least.

This also becomes moot if the MN decides to dissolve the Cosa. I hope to avoid that as well.

why do you do this Ben ???

the phone number was at work, and I had a VERY busy yesterday, so it slipped my mind.

Why do you assumed people are covering up and lying to you ???

Why do you insult people like this ?

The phone number is now in your email box.

(or should be). Gödafrieu Válcadác'h was CCed since he is the one who reminded me about it.

A simply e-mail : "hi Martin, did you forget to give me his phone number" would have reminded me...

Why do you say nothing when Chirisch Cavéir calls my wife a 'whore', but you complain when I say "one is left wondering about things"?

When your responses are that much out of harmony, when you refuse to see the board sticking out of your own eye (or that of the Opposition, collectively) and instead concentrate on the speck in my eye (or that of the Government, collectively), then there is no reason to believe your outrage is honest. Instead, it just looks like American-style politics as usual, and that's not good for Talossa.

No-one called your wife a "whore". The remark I made was in reference to you as a pimp and your devout, unquestioning supporters as whores.

Since I also accuse you of being whipped, it seems logically incongruous to accuse you of being the whipper.

Kind of like your bizarre "They kicked you out of the PC that you destroyed!" argument.

I am not entering that debate... when Grubi said Ben's little 'ho he was not referring to your wife, but rather to Maxime because he is convinced that Maxime will do everything YOU ask him to do, rather than forming his own opinions. He think Maxime is a puppet in your hands, hence the term Ho.

Not that it excuses anything. He shouldn't have said it, and he should have made it clear he was talking about Maxime.

Like I said to you on the phone, both you and Grubi acted like assholes when you both called names.

And for the records, Amy also called Grubi names, terrible names ("You are the scum of the Earth").

This is not right from any of you. I did not personally condemn your name calling more than Grubi's, and if I did, I appologize.

But you were both wrong.

But me not denouncing Grubi or you for personal attacks doesn't justify your actions against me either.

When you say "the opposition" you put all eggs in the same basket.

Did I or didn't I try to talk to you to calm things down during the crisis ?

I did the same to Grubi, asking him to refrain from personal attacks.

Neither of you listened to me, and now citizens are leaving because they are tired of the fighting.

I even talked to Mic'háglh Pop this week-end on the phone when he called me and made quite clear that the PC doesn't support personal attacks.

Both you and Grubi should be ashamed of what you said, but that is not the point here.

I didn't bring in that.

You did.

All I am saying is:

why are you attacking ME on Wittenberg ?

Why did I do personally to deserve this attack on my reputation ?

Did I ever say on Wittenberg you lied when you claimed Ivanâ Vitxalmoûr voted for the MN ? NO ! Because I believe you.

But as soon as I declare I spoke to Ken about his seats, you assume I am lying.

I don't like what this says about me, and I want an apology.

BUT, I will be kind, you can wait until you talk to Ken before apologizing and confirm my story.

It hurts me, and I don't like hurting. I have always tried in my life to be as honest as possible, and in my role as SoS to be as non-partisan as possible.

Azul, fellow Talossans,

As you know, I recently resigned all my political positions, namely the governorship of Atatürk Province, the Ministry of Culture, and my Cosâ seats. However, that was not enough. I need to free myself even further.

Therefore, effective immediately, I am resigning as both Editor-in-Chief of Støtanneu and as Presedînt of CÚG, and I pass both of those hats to R. Rôibeard Donatüs. In the event that Ben does not wish to perform either of those duties, he may appoint whoever he sees fit to those offices.

I am also resigning my membership in the Grey Congress Party. I will not be affiliated with any political party whatsoever from now on, and I shall not be voting in any elections from now on. Should I lose my head due to the Three Strikes Law, I shall appeal to King Robert I — assuming he remains the Talossan head of state — for a Royal pardon. If such a pardon does not come and I lose my citizenship, so be it. I will never renounce my Talossan citizenship, but if it is lost due to inactivity, I no longer care. I can enjoy the one and only aspect of Talossa which gives me joy, namely the Talossan language, regardless of whether or not I am a Talossan citizen.

For as long as I remain a citizen of Talossa, I will retain two positions, however: I remain a member (though not an officer) of CÚG, and I remain the maintainer of Talossa.com.

In closing, I wish to state one further thing: that the only Talossa which is acceptable to me, and the only Talossa which should be acceptable to each and every other Talossan citizen, is one in which Rôibeard Donatüs sits on the throne and Chirisch Cavéir sits on the Uppermost Cort. Nothing else will do. I leave it to you all to work out the details.

As always, anyone and everyone is welcome to contact me by email or telephone, but I will not be checking Wittenberg.

Aréivi à toct,

Tomás Gariçéir

Azul, UC!

OK, here it is: Amy and I plan on taking the ferry from Portsmouth (England) to St Malo (France) on Sunday, 30 May 2004 and arriving St Malo around 17:00. We will spend two nights in St Malo and we will visit Cézembre the next day: Monday, 31 May 2004.

If you can join us, that would be fantastic!

Ben

To: R. Rôibeard Donatüs

From: Ken Velméir

Date: 26 November 2003

In my capacity as a member of the Cort, I issue the following ruling.

1) The Org Law clearly states that if seats are not assigned by the party which gained them in the election, then those seats are vacant. Given the fact that I as the only person to have voted for the ZPT, and was unreachable to assign the seats, I find it acceptable given the Org Law's existing provisions, that the SoS would assign those seats.

Furthermore, neither in the Org Law, nor in normal western democracies, can the leader of a party take away the voting rights of one person who controls that party's seats, and assign those rights to another person. A party leader can kick someone out of a party, but once those seats have been won, they are controled by that person until such time as that person chooses to relinquish them.

Talossa is slightly different in that one person may hold multiple seats in our legislative body. Some might argue that as long as a person has at least one seat in the Cosa, the party leader can move the number of seats (read votes) between party members (or other citizens) as he or she sees fit. Unfortunately, such a belief is inorganic. Since seats in the Cosa are votes, taking away seats from a person is taking away their voting power, and the Org Law does not permit this.

This all being said, I find that I have no ability to take any seats away from Mr. Conâ and assign them to anyone else. These seats were assigned in an organic manner, and there is no provision in the law which allows me to change that assignment.

Well, thanks to Ken, my fellow Justice, for his words of wisdom.

This doesn't constitute a formal ruling, I must hasten to say, although it certainly sounds like one. ;-)

No two Justices ever spoke/communicated directly with each other concerning this matter. We were "sounded out" by the SoS and all three of us found - initially - no reason to say he could not give the seats back to the Party Leader (Ken). Those opinions were not rulings, either.

But, assuming all parties will be more or less happy with this event (and I think they will be within a few days), then Seatgate can be said to be closed and moot.

That is, unless and until the matter is, officially, taken to court in a formal lawsuit.

Bravo to Ken, and might I say, provided Eif & I can stay in semi-regular contact with the guy, he should remain on the Cort.

Just so we're all clear from the very being, I'm not

So the way Ken looks at it a party leader can legally never redistribute party seats outside the time between the end of the general election and the first Clark. This seems entirely reasonable and ethical under the old one-person, one-seat Cosa, but doesn't it go against the traditional practices of the 200-seat Cosa?

The consquence is thus: a party leader must set his entire Cosa delegation before the start of a new Cosa session. He cannot during that entire session take some of his seats (or others) and give them to a, say, new party member joined in-stream. That is, "Joe", El Presidente of the Democratic-Republican Revolutionary Conservative Party of Talossa, can't give seats to new D-RRCPoT member "Ed" during month 3 of the Cosa session.

Isn't this a departure from the old 200-seat Cosa traditions and practice? And in fact sort of a hybridization of the one-person, one-seat Cosa and the multi-seat Cosa? Just so this is down in law I really think the entire Cort should make a ruling.

Actually, this is how it worked before. A party leader would hand out seats, and then those seats became the permanent property (until the next election) of the MC holding them. They could not be taken away.

> The consequence is thus: a party leader must set his entire Cosa delegation before the start of a new Cosa session. Under the old (and new) system, if "Ed" joins the country, somebody in "Joe's" party has to consent to losing howevermany seats "Ed" is to be given. This has never been a point of contention; parties are usually keen on giving up seats to new supporters or newbies, but it's up to the person actually holding the seats, not to the party leaders.

I don't think that's what Ken meant. He knows that the a party leader distributes the seats, but he acknowledged that he was a "non-functioning" party leader and that M-P was in his right as SoS to assign the seats to Gary, which is covered in the OrgLaw. Now if Ken had told M-P "I'll get back to you on it" in that period of time, and M-P had assigned the seats to Gary in the meantime, Ken would have had every right as party leader to do with those seats as he wishes.

Since Ken acknowledged he was a non-functional party leader, and especially since he has said the seats are officially Gary's, the issue is over. For now. :-)

Good point! I hadn't noticed that there is no provision for resigning a portion of one's seats. Well, at least the wording is very unclear.

The way I see it, there is nothing in the OrgLaw prohibiting a member of the Cosa to vacate only a portion of his/her seats. Upon vacating those seats the party leader could then reassign them to whomever he/she wishes. Ken comment and the whole problem was that of reassigning seats without the consent of the holder of those seats and the OrgLaw prohibits such forced removal.

If someone hold 5 seats and refuse to give them up, there is nothing that anyone can do, they are his/her seats. If he is willing to vacate some or all of them then the party leader can reassign whichever seats gets vacated.

Any Cosa seats can be reassigned by the party leader if they are vacated by the previous holder. There is provision for this in the OrgLaw.

In other words, if Gary would decide to vacate some or all of his seats, they can be reassigned by the ZPT leader. However, Gary cannot be forced out of those seats. there is a distinction.

The "votes not seats" argument would make more sense if people would actually vote for persons not parties IMO.

But as far as I understand it, the party leader can't force a sitter to give up his seat that doesn't mean the seats can't be re-distributed voluntarily. If I'm wrong then we would have to change the law to fit it to the 200 seat system better.

What I meant to say in the first sentence above was thus:

"Just so we're all clear from the very beginning, I'm not trying to get involved in the present argument about whether the ZPT as PM-maker (imagine that!) is PM-maker for the MN or the PC. Instead I want us to look at the larger and longer-lived constitutional meaning.

See, there's still enough heat on Witt for me to roast marshmallows just fine; I don't need to jump into the fire."

I could probably use one of those, any idea where I can get one? ;-)

Cheers,

Azul,

The PC elder know as Herr Metáiriâ and the MN secretary official negociation are now over.

I Maxime P-Carbonèl , accept the agreement between this governement and the opposition.

I official ask the king to forget about my demand for a Writ of dissolution

I also accept to resigned as Seneschál of Talossa.

I do that after consultation of my cabinet.

I will refuse any nomination to serve in the next governement cabinet.

I hope to see the opposition respect the part of the agreement.

Be sure to see me around for the next election.

My resignation will take effect at 1 o'clock in the morning 27th november 2003

Talossa I love you more and more

Maxime P-Carbonèl

Seneschál

Hopefully Dan Lauriér beat me for the shortest term ever ;)

Hum! That effective date being in the past... I assume that Dixhêt Conâ who was DPM is now temporary the leader of the government.

And in that case he's the first ever government leader from the ZPT. This has indeed been a weird month in the history of Talossa :)

Max was only Seneschál of Talossa for a short time; however, he has left his mark on the nation. Max is to be commended for a job well done, seeing the Kingdom through a major crisis. Despite many obstacles, Max was able to rally a qualified and dedicated Cabinet around him. Max's energy and innovative ideas will serve Talossa well in the future.

I am willing to work with the new government and I feel very strongly that this compromise agreement will bring peace and stability to Talossa. I look forward to Max serving as Seneschál once again when the opportunity presents itself.

That's the best straight line I've seen in years. I can't tell you how difficult it is to let it go by.

Aaarrgh... no, no, no, won't do it. Must contain self. Contain. Restrain. Bite firmly down on the gag reflex. Think about baseball. Horses. Streets.

Huchghh... herchhgh... somebody save me.

I'll make this as non-personal as I can: What planet are you living on, Mark? None of what you have said is true unless you haven't been paying any attention at all. Was it mere toadying? Stupid ol' me, I don't get it... what are the high points of the Max government, exactly?

How could he have any high points? He wasn't in office long enough to accomplish anything.

I'm fairly certain that the Opposition expected truly bad things from Maxime. Did anything like that happen? No. I think the worst thing anyone could accuse Max of is that he was an average PM, and I think that's due to his lack of time in office. Max did try to make things work.

I believe it says much about Max's character that he's stepping down. Yes, the Opposition was unilaterally opposed to Max as PM, but nowhere in the OrgLaw does it say everyone has to like the PM. We now know that Jeff's early ouster was due to an unfortunate albeit large misunderstanding. The MN and ZPT knew it would be a point of contention, but we did not foresee all the deep personal problems that occurred.

Max is committed to Talossa and Talossans; that is why he is stepping down. He has accepted the agreement in his best interest and in Talossa's. We in the MN applaud him for this. We support him in this decision and we will support him in the future.

We look forward to participating in a National Unity Government!
